Displaying one of this and that in an impactful way isn't easy. Rather than putting one-offs on a sale table, coordinate similar items into a statement display that will garner full price for your leftovers.

By combining products in green, gold and brown, these disparate objects are cohesively brought together to tell a story relating to everyday life – the hall table. Jewellery peeled off after walking in the door from a long day at work is casually spilling over a woven trunk stacked on top of another to mirror the height on the opposite side of the table. A collage of mix-and-match vessels shows off the home owner's favourite pieces and the collection of books acts as a decorative accent and an innovative riser for the lamp. The soft bamboo throw set against a textured stool along with the elegant flowers and discarded high heels add a fanciful, natural air to the scene.

This asymmetrical pyramid display is anchored with a glamorous sunburst mirror, encouraging the eye to travel from the lamp across the table to the trunks, up to the mirror and back down again.
